POETRY.

LINES FOR A YOUNG GIRLS ALBUM.—(ORIGINAL.)

Think not that we love thee now,
For virtues that we deem thy own,
Would still the same regard bestow,
If all those moral charms were flown.

The fairest flower, that decks the field,
Is first admired—then left to fade,
While meener flowers, that incense yield,
Are to our bosom's wreath conveyed.

Affection, modesty and truth,
The brightest beauty will outshine—
While those remain that grace thy youth,
Our early love will ne'er decline.

When beauty's charms are all decayed,
If virtue in thy bosom reigns,
We'll clasp the treasure that remains,
We'll clasp the treasure that remains.

LOVE'S SIGNAL-BELL.

In the light shif at evening's hour,
When moved by many a flashing star,
It swiftly glides past town and tower,
And cliffs that crown the foam fringed shore,
How sweet to hear the curfew chime,
Remind us of the olden time!

How sweet to hear the hollow bell
Blowing in sound with Ocean's swell!
See how the crew with sighs that glisten
From feeling at the solemn sound,
Lean on the idle oar and listen,
While peals the bell with note profound.

Hark how through air it floats along,
Now faint and far, now near and strong;
From cliff to cliff it echoes dry,
And now, at length in distance die!

But who can know the rapturous feeling
Of one whose twilight curfew stealing
Across the Ocean's darkening bill,
Oh! to his Love's signal bell!

To heart and ear its accents tell,
That soon or many moments roll—
He meets the mistress of his soul.

CALLS.—(ORIGINAL.)

Calls are very different from parties. The former are generally uninvited; the latter are generally formed by the person at whose house they are assembled. There are various kinds of calls. There is the ceremonious call, peculiar to the gentle or the coquettish of society—the familiar call, sometimes termed a happening, and another species of family visiting which the country people term "going a neighboring." The object of the ceremonious call is to preserve a sort of speaking acquaintance with those who are of sufficient importance, to be retained as well wishers, but who are too insignificant, to be converted into intimates. A lady will call upon one of her nodding acquaintance, at a time when she is pretty sure of not finding the latter at home and leave her card—which is as much as to say—"Madam, possibly the time may come, in future, when you may be capable of doing me an essential service, I am therefore desirous of keeping on good terms with you, though I do not wish to be considered as taking you into our circle—I preferred calling in your absence, lest your agreeable conversation might tempt me to be a little more intimate with you than would be consistent with the dignity of one of my station."—I therefore, leave this card as a token of my good wishes and condescension." The lady who receives it is willing to be thus insulted, for the sake of showing the card, which will prove that she has the honor of the acquaintance of Lady —, who is really no better than herself, though she enjoys the reputation of squandering more money. The second species of call is happening or gossip call. Mrs. B. calls upon several of her neighbors, in the course of the day, taking pains to happen in at a time when they are doing the very things which they wished to do in private. This affords her an opportunity of collecting observations enough to employ her wits in manufacturing scandal for a whole week; in making matches, forming reputations and in foretelling the future events of the neighborhood. By this means she is enabled to keep the run of all the scandal, and to anticipate a great deal of it; which prepares her mind for the third, or family call, which consists of a meeting of the neighbors at each other's houses, by appointment, denominated "going a neighboring." At such times the good dames usually put their wits, their facts, observations and conjectures together, and concoct all the proceedings of the neighborhood for the whole week or month past, and make their prophecies concerning the future. It is a sort of council of war. Each one tells her experiences, and they all depart much wiser than they entered. This is a fair picture of the social happiness of a common village neighborhood.

Closing Passage of Outre Mer.—"My pilgrimage is finished. I have come home to rest; and recording the time passed, I have fulfilled these things, and written them in this book, as it would come into my mind,—for the most part when the duties of the day were over, and the world around me was hushed in sleep. The pen wherewith I write most easily is a feather stolen from the sabbie wing of night. Even now, as I record these parting words, it is long past midnight. The morning watches have begun. And as I write; the melancholy thought intrudes upon me,—To what end is all this toil? Of what avail these midnight vigils? Dost thou covet fame? Vain dreamer! A few brief days,—and what will the busy world know of thee? Alas! this little book is but a bubble on the stream; and although it may catch the sunshine for a moment, yet it will soon float down the swift rushing current, and be seen no more."

Automaton Juggler.—Under this name a curious figure is exhibited in the Lowther Arcade, which is mechanically moved to answer questions and perform tricks with cards and dice. It is some twenty inches in height, and very ingeniously constructed. To us it seemed that the communication from the person who shows the automaton is by means of a rope in front, as if to keep the spectators off the table; but even if so, the machinery is curious, and the exhibition amusing.

A Pun.—An eminent architect, who has a part of that royal residence assigned to him, being asked what sort of a tenant he considered himself in Windsor Castle, readily replied, Why-at-will.

APPROVED SCHOOL BOOKS.

A LOVELL'S GRAMMAR, being an abridgement of Murray's English Grammar, with Art, Agrees and Station, containing Exercises in Orthography, in Parsing, in Syntax, and in Punctuation: designed for the younger class of learners—by Lindley Murray. To which questions are added, punctuation, and the notes on the Rules in Syntax copiously supplied from the author's large grammar, being his own original and genuine Table, revised, prepared, and adapted to the use of the "English Exercises"—by ISRAEL ALGER, Jr. A. M. recently a teacher in Hawkins Street School, Boston.

A cheap and compendious elementary work for general use, this is probably the best Grammar extant, and is rapidly gaining an introduction into most of the towns in New England. Though furnished at a moderate price, it is no copious as, in most cases, to supersede the necessity of a larger work. [Selected from the Record of the School Committee, Boston.] At a meeting of the School Committee, held at the Mayor and Aldermen's rooms, May 5, 1834, it was—Voted, That Alger's Abridgement of Murray's Grammar, Boston stereotype edition, be introduced into the public Reading and Grammar Schools in this city. J. H. PIERCE, Secretary.

ALGER'S GRAMMAR, consisting of Exercises in Parsing, instances of false Orthography, violations of the rules in Syntax, defects in Punctuation, and violations of the rules respecting perspicuous and accurate writing—with which the corresponding rules, notes and observations, in Murray's Grammar are incorporated; also, References in Promiscuous Exercises to the Rules by which the errors are to be corrected. Revised, prepared and particularly adapted to the use of Schools; by ISRAEL ALGER, Jr. A. M.

NEW EDITIONS of the above popular School Books, handsomely printed from new stereotype plates, and neatly bound, are now published and for sale at 77 Washington street, J. O. BARNES, and by the principal booksellers in the United States.

Also, for sale above, a general assortment of School and Classical books. Teachers and country merchants are respectfully invited to call. j17

BOSTON TRUSS MANUFACTORY.—J. W. PHELPS—successor to BEATH & FOSTER—would inform the public that he will continue to manufacture the different kinds of Trusses made by Messrs Beath & Foster, with improvements on the same. Having had occasion during the past season for applying many of these instruments to some of the most difficult and intricate cases of Hernia, the undersigned feels confident that no cases, however difficult, if applied to by him, will pass without receiving the most satisfactory relief. As the safety of the captured part, and the permanent cure, greatly depends upon the adaptation of a truss to the particular rupture it is intended to support, it necessarily follows that much care should be taken in selecting such a truss as is suited to the particular case. To obviate the frequent complaints made of the inefficiency of trusses, the undersigned keeps for sale an extensive assortment of the best quality, and fitted out with peculiar care.

Among the great variety of trusses, made and kept on hand, are—patent elastic spring trusses with spring pads—improved and new kind of trusses not to be put in and out of the body, and suspensory trusses—Hull's double and single do, Philadelphia India rubber truss—Batesman's, Marshall's, and Shaker's do—Reed's spiral spring truss, N.
